

Fighting Complacency

January 2004

The Reserve Officers Association's Warrant Officer of the Year Award recipient said complacency is a warrant officer's worst pitfall.

"There's nothing worse than a warrant officer that's not on top of their technology" and military occupation, Chief Warrant Officer 3 Janie Diamond said. A military technician who works for the G-1 as a civilian and the G-3 as a reservist, she specializes in Army personnel and training.

Staying current in their Army field of specialty and continuing with their education is important.

"That's my biggest piece of advice," Diamond said she can give to warrant officers today.

"It's easy to become complacent."

---

Copyright © 2004 by The Association of the U.S. Army